CONTEST LASTED ONLY ONE ROUND Lively "Go" in the Rotunda of the Court House.

At about noon yesterday visitors at the court house were startled at seeing the corridor of the hall on the main floor, directly under the rotunda, smeared with blood and bearing every evidence of having been the scene of a deadly conflict. Those who had been about the building just before noon were attracted by loud cries and shouting, and the halls were quickly filled with a crowd of people anxious to learn the cause of the great commotion. They saw a man whose face looked like a well-mangled beefsteak standing in the middle of the floor howling like a madman. Another man was jus passing out of the front door, drawing his coat about him to hide the shirt bosom. which was spattered with gore. The man with the face was James C. Stover, formerly proprietor of a shoe store in this city, and the other man was A. S. Ritchie, an at-

From an eye-witness of the whole affair a full account of the occurrence was obtained. Stover and his wife were the defendants in a suit in the county court in which a local shoe jobbing house was en-deavoring to recover judgment for certain goods sold to the Stovers when they were in the shoe business, the business having been in the name of the wife.

Ritchie was representing Mrs. Stover in the case in question, and is also her attorney in a suit brought by her in the district court to secure a divorce from Stover on the grounds of desertion and nonsupport. In the latter case an order of court has been made requiring Stover to pay his wife $15 per month for the support of herself and the minor children.

When court adjourned yesterday Mrs.

together, and were about fifty feet from the door when Stover came out and called to his wife, asking her if she would let him see the children. Ritchie asked Mrs. Stover if her husband had paid her the alimony for last menth. Receiving a really in the regarding month. Receiving a reply in the negative Ritchie informed Stover that he could no see the children until he had paid the money. Stover resented any interference by Ritchie, and words ensued. Ritchie re reated his ultimatum, and Stover threatene-to "lick" him and started towards the attorney as if to put his threat into opera-tion. He ran up to Ritchie and struck at him. Ritchie countered, and Stover went at him again. The lawyer warded off the blows and Stover crowded him until Ritchie gave it to him plenty. Two blows with the right landed above Stover's left eye and the blood spurted over Ritchie and onto the floor Stover went down and Ritchie asked him is Stover went down and Ritchle asked him if he had enough. Stover was game and swore he would "lick" Ritchle when he got up. Ritchle appealed to some of the bystanders to hold Stover until he could get away from him, and several of them complied. Stover was blinded by the blood and Ritchle hastened out of the building, covering up his shirt, which was stained with blood. The only marks of the conflict on Ritchle, aside from his shirt, were a pair of bruised knuckles.

bruised knuckles.

Stover was placed under a water faucet and some of the blood removed. His injuries were found to consist of a knob over his left eye about the size of his fist. This had burst from the force of the blows and presented a sickening sight.

Stover was led away by friends, but the blood on the floor marked the acene of the

CONFER ON BOLLN SHORTAGE

City Officials and Bondsmen No Nearer Together Than Before.

CONNELL ADVISES AGAINST ANY DELAY

Attorney for the Sureties of the Defaulting Ex-City Treasurer Contends that They Are Liable for Only $18,000.

The long postponed conference between the representatives of the city and the bondsmen of ex-City Treasurer Bolln was held in the committee room of the city hall yesterday forenoon. It was largely an exhaustive relation of facts and theories previously stated and resulted in little beyond emphasizing the Impression that the Board of Education had very much complicated the situation when it settled its claim for $7,000.

The bondsmen were represented at the conference by W. A. Paxton, John F. Coad, Gustave Anderson, George E. Barker, L. D. Fowler and their attorney, T. J. Mahoney. Councilmen Wheeler, Kennard and Benawa of the finance committee. City Attorney Connell and Louis Wettling were present to act for the city. Kennard wanted to have a star chamber session, but his suggestion was denied by the nondsmen, who stated that they had nothing to conceal. Mr. Mahoney explained the position of the His statements were on the same line that was covered in his written proposition to the council, and his position rested on the allegation that after the $62,000, which he alleged had been illegally transferred from the city to the school fund, was subtracted, the bondsmen were only liable for something over $18,000. He said that the only question to be considered was whether the city wished to sue the bondsmen for the full amount bondsmen for the full amount and then allow the bondsmen to reinburse themselves from the school fund or to settle with the bondsmen for the amount for which they would be ultimately liable, and themselves collect from the Board of Education the amount which had been wrongfully transferred to the school fund. He declared that there was no question from a legal standpoint out that the Board of Education was liable for the ancunts that had been transferred from city funds. In support of his position he quoted a Massachusetts case in which one man was trustee for two corporations. He had transferred money from the treas-ury of one to that of the other, and the court had decided that the wronged corpor ation had undoubtedly the right to follow the money into the treasury where it had been received. He argued that this was exactly a parallel case. If the city now had a right to follow this $62,000 into the

COMPLICATES MATTERS Councilman Wheeler Inquired why, hey believed that the shortage to the school they believed that the shortage to the saled-fund was so great, the bondsmen had settled with the Boara of Education. He was as-sured that this was done by an altogether different set of bondsmen, and in fact, Mr. Mahoney continued, he could not criticise the bondsmen or the Board of Education for settling for $7,000 an apparent shortage of $34,000 when the members of the Board of Education themselves had been so anxious o effect the settlement City Attorney Connell stated that from a legal standpoint the city had a plain right of recovery against the bondsmen for the full amount claimed. Whether the suit of the bondsmen against the Board of Education would lie in turn was not for him to consider. In his opinion the only thing the committee could do was to sue the bonds-men for the full amount. Then, if the bondsmen should recover from the Board of Education, it would place the responsibility where it belonged. He added that there Attorney Covell for the board not to advise run the business of the board to suit him-self.

The bondsmen then tried to induce the representatives of the city to con-sent that all the issues of the case should be included in one suit, the result to de-termine what proportion of the defalcation should be made up by the Board of Educa-tion and how much by the bondsmen. This was argued for some time, but was opposed by the city attorney and councilmen. They contended that the city had nothing to do with the alleged accountability of the Board of Education, but that the only policy they could pursue was to bring suit against the bondsmen for the full amount and leave the bondsmen to obtain relief from the board if they could.

Mr. Barker brought up the proposition that if the city would accept the offer of settlement, the bondsmen would guarantee to raise a subscription of $50,000 for the exposition. He would give $5,000 himself, but if he had a suit for $100,000 hanging over his head he would consider himself too poor to give a dollar. It was also proposed that if this proposition should be accepted the bondsmen would assign their stock in the exposition to the city. City Attorney Connell advised that it would be best to file the petition against the bondsmen at once, but Chairman Kennard of the finance committee decided against it. Consequently action was posponed until after the committee reports KILLING FROSTS ARE PREDICTED.

Sebraska Crops, with Few Exceptions, Rendy for It. Yesterday afternoon the weather bureau received word from Washington that killing frosts were to be expected this morning throughout this entire section of country. Yesterday morning the temperature fell to a phenomenally low point over the upper Missouri valley, and last night the area of low temperatures had extended until it embraced the entire upper and middle valleys of the Mississippi and Missouri. The pre-diction was that the frost would be severe nough to nip all kinds of vegetation. Reports from the country districts, with very few exceptions, are to the effect that corn is practically all teyond the point where it can be damaged by frost. Rain, however, has so seriously interfered with having that many farmers have not been able to get all their grass cut. A heavy frost will put an end to operations in this line. While some individual farmers will possibly not bave hay enough, the reverse is true, so far as the total supply is concerned, for there has been one of the largest crops of hay cut ever put in the stack in Nebraska. "Nebraska's All Right." The above is the farmer's verdiet. Oats! oats! oats! Corn! corn! corn! Sugar beets, chicory and vegetables of all kinds. Never did land produce more abundant crops than those of this season. Seeing is believing, and all homeseekers who have tired of paying reut, or wish a change to cheaper (but not, poorer) land, in a state where climate is all that could be asked, should see Nebraska's soil and crops. One of the matters that came up was a project to create a fund to build and main tain a home for old preachers and their wives. The plan was favorably viewed by the conference, but no decision was reached. The whole matter was placed in the hands of a special committee A new Board of Visitors for the theological seminary, located at Chicago, was elected, the members being: Rev. E. Rosen, Rev. P.

The place for holding the next year's ses sion was not chosen, but the matter was left n the hands of a committee which will make the selection during the coming year. The sentiment was in favor of selecting an eastern city, but there was a difference of opinion as to which should be chosen.

The question of celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the seminary was decided adversely. It was held that times were too hard to justify the expenditure of the money that would be needed. During the course of the session Rev. C. L. Johnson of Denver delivered an address upon "The Missions in Colorado." The address was of interest. Just before the adjournment the chairman thanked the conference for the order and decorum that had been preserved in all the sessions. A little flurry in western passenger circles has been occasioned during the last week by the discovery that certain unused full fare tickets were being offered for sale in Denver at rates which spread desolation and ruin in their train. The roads affected were the Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific and Den ver & Rio Grande, and the tickets were not restricted in destination to near-by stations. His scheme was not a original or ingenious one, but it had the merit of simplicity. He went to one of the roads and got an order for a half-fare ticket to some convenient point. Most of the lines are liberal with these favors to those who have any claim to receive them, and when the ticket is issued there is nothing abou to indicate that only half-fare has been paid in exchange for it. Having made a beginning, this thrift, young man went the rounds of the roads using the order already obtained from one official as a lever to open other ticket cases to him. In this way he accumulated a con-siderable number of this kind of tickets. getting as many as five from one road. IMPEACHMENT IN PROSPECT general conference of the United States ad- Police Have Charges Already Formulated Against Judge Gordon.

Eighteenth street, where the meetings have TROUBLE IS ONE OF LONG STANDING

Wherein They Are Handleapped by the Methods Pursued by the Court.

At the next meeting of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Chief of Detectives Cox will file a document that will call for the beginning of impeachment proceedings against the police judge, if in future he does not transact the police court business as the police officials believe it should be transacted.

The reason for bringing the proceedings s found in the number of long continuances that have been entered in the cases instituted by the police. The police court attorneys, so the officers say, have inaugurated a policy of continuing cases, especially those charging larceny from the person and gambling, until the prosecuting witnesses become tired of waiting for a trial and leave the city. The cases are then allowed to come to trial and are invariably dismissed.

The police allege that such a course of onducting cases, especially those of larceny for $4,061.11. In each case attachments from the person, is calculated to increase were such crimes, and has increased them to a considerable extent of late. It is said that will avail the police nothing to cause their arrest on the charge. Strong in that belief they are said to have plied their thieving profession with vigor of late. Hardly a week has passed during the last three months that several cases of larceny have nct been reported.

When the cases come to trial it frequently happens that the police have lost track of their complaining witnesses, or other wit nesses, and no conviction can be obtained. When the time arrived, however, a continuance was entered, and this was followed by others, so that the case has not yet been tried. In the meantime the complaining witness was released on bonds. He had not a cent of money, and during all this delay he obtained his food from the free lunch places about the city or at the city jail, and slept in outhouses or at the station. not make the motion for a continuance in these cases for any legitimate reason, but simply for the purpose of drawing out the cases until they are dismissed. Evidence is lost, witnesses disappear and other cir-cumstances arise which make it impossible convict, and then the cases are allowed to come to trial.

The strongest objection is coming from the detective department, as this system has been used in the cases that the secret service officers work up. It was for this reason that Detective Cox felt called upon to make the complaint. He will recommend that the mayor instruct the police judge to be more stringent in the matter of continuances and that he begin impeachment proceedings if he does not change his course

 THE EBB AND FLOW

Of the trade tide is like that of the Ocean. The slack water of summer business is 1519 Douglas st., no sooner reached than the flood tide of fall sets in. It will soon be upon us in resistless volume. We have been preparing for it for weeks. We've been doing some masterful buying for you.

We have clearly cut down all former efforts in gathering together our stock of lamps, lamp shades and decorated lamp globes. Our prices shed a new light on values. Call and look them over.

King Sleeps in a Vacant House and When Louis King got to his home last night it was very late. Consequently, when he discovered that his key was on the other side of the locked door he decided that he would not disturb anyone, but would sleep outside. He hunted up a vacant building and turned in. Toward morning, however, he was discovered by a policeman, who locked him up. King was arraigned in police court yestervagrant and sleeping in a vacant building. He recited the circumstances of the case to the court and was released.
